Indiana Gazette (April 14, 2006)

BLAIRSVILLE - Blairsville dentist John Yelenic was found dead Thursday afternoon with injuries that he apparently suffered in a violent struggle inside his residence at 223 S. Spring St., Indiana County Coroner Michael Baker said this morning.

Yelenic, 39, a partner in the Reilly & Yelenic Dental office at 135 E. Market St., died several hours before his body was discovered about 3:30 p.m.

A child noticed a broken window and some blood on the area of the front door at Yelenic's house and summoned two other people who opened the door and found Yelenic's body, Baker said.

There are multiple wounds on the body, but we do not know what they were made with yet, Baker said.

He described the area surrounding Yelenic's body as one of disarray.

Yelenic's body was taken first to the morgue at Indiana Regional Medical Center, then was sent to the Cyril Wecht Pathology Associates in Pittsburgh for an autopsy that was to begin at 9 this morning.

No findings were available at press time.

Blairsville Borough police and state police crime-scene analysts investigated at Yelenic's residence Thursday afternoon but released no information and did not respond to calls requesting comment this morning.

Yelenic led a private life, by the accounts of his former wife, an aunt and a neighbor.

His estranged wife, Michele Yelenic of White Township, said they separated five years ago following a brief marriage, and their divorce case had proceeded quietly for the past year but was not final.

In October 2003, however, Yelenic was arrested by Blairsville Borough police for violating a protection-from-abuse order that Michele had obtained against him, according to a report published in The Gazette.

The couple had a 7-year-old son, who longtime neighbor David Gilmore said was adopted.

He went to Sunday school at our church, Christian Missionary & Alliance Church in Blairsville, with his boy on weekends, said Gilmore, of 143 S. Spring St.

Gilmore, 50, said Yelenic's mother often asked him to baby-sit her son when he was a child, after his father died.

He is 10 years older than he was.

She asked me to baby-sit him so he could have some male influence, said Gilmore. Yelenic's mother, Mary Lois Yelenic, died in 1997.

Yelenic's father, John, died from a heart attack while driving on Route 22 in 1967, according to his aunt, Betty Yelenic of East Chestnut Street.

My youngest son, Michael, and John used to play together at the playground when they were children, but then John's mother became overprotective.

He and the families drifted apart, Betty Yelenic said.

Yelenic had no brothers or sisters. Officials went to Michele Yelenic's residence just before midnight Thursday, considering her John Yelenic's closest relative, to officially give notice of his death.

A message left with Yelenic's dental office was not returned.

A pastor at Yelenic's church declined to comment.

Indiana Gazette (April 15, 2006)

BLAIRSVILLE - Indiana County Coroner Michael Baker ruled Friday that dentist John Yelenic was a victim of homicide, and local police put a clamp on information related to Yelenic's death.

Yelenic bled to death in his residence at 223 S. Spring St., Baker reported following an autopsy performed at the Cyril Wecht pathology laboratory in Pittsburgh.

But Baker withheld details such as the time officials believe Yelenic died and the nature of his injuries, although he said Yelenic apparently had been involved in a violent struggle less than 24 hours before his body was found.

Neighbors discovered Yelenic's body at about 3:30 p.m. Thursday and Baker pronounced him dead at 4:10 p.m.

The autopsy showed Yelenic suffered "severe blood loss," according to Baker, who listed exsanguination as the cause of death.

State police and Blairsville Borough officers investigated Yelenic's death, and troopers at the Indiana station said the Blairsville department was in charge of the investigation.

Messages left for Blairsville Chief Donald Hess and investigator Cpl. Janelle Lydic were not returned. Late Friday afternoon, an officer at the station said Hess decided to schedule a news conference for 1 p.m. Monday.

Yelenic was 39 and in the process of a divorce, according to his wife, Michele Yelenic of White Township.

Yelenic was a partner with Dr. Thomas Reilly in the Reilly & Yelenic Dental office along East Market Street, Blairsville.

Reilly did not return calls left at his office and home.

An employee at the dental office late Friday afternoon said workers were shocked about Yelenic's death and seemed "to be working on automatic pilot."

She said Reilly's semi-retired brother, Dr. Richard Reilly, came in to help treat patients on a full schedule of appointments.

Pennsylvania cop on trial for allegedly murdering girlfriend's estranged husband

Prosecutor: Trooper prayed for dentist's death
Tells jury he even asked another trooper to help him kill the victim

Murder Trial Begins: Lawyer Says Pa. Trooper 'Loathed' Slain Dentist
Jury Almost Complete; Pa. Trooper's Homicide Trial Stays Local

INDIANA, Pa. - A western Pennsylvania state trooper hated his girlfriend's estranged husband, prayed that he would die and made up claims that he molested his adopted son, a state prosecutor told a jury as the trooper's trial began Monday.

Kevin Foley was living with Dr. John Yelenic's wife at the time the dentist's throat was slit on April 13, 2006. Yelenic, 39, was found dead in his Blairsville home the day before he was to sign his final divorce papers.

"This was in no way an amicable divorce," Deputy Attorney General Anthony Krastek told the Indiana County jury.

Foley "loathed Dr. Yelenic" and even asked another trooper to help him kill the dentist, Krastek said. Claims that Yelenic molested his son - also perpetuated by the dentist's wife - were unfounded, he said.

John and Michele Yelenic separated in 2002 and their divorce was so contentious the dentist's attorney asked a judge to issue a divorce decree a month after he died, saying the dentist would have wanted it that way. The judge ultimately rejected the request, finding Yelenic's death made the matter moot.

Krastek told the jury that DNA found under Yelenic's fingerprints link Foley to his death. Bloody footprints that match athletic shoes Foley was known to wear at the time will also link him to the crime, Krastek said.

"You will see Kevin Foley has the motive, the opportunity and the ability to commit this crime, almost to the exclusion of anybody else," he said.

'Jumping to a conclusion'

But Foley's defense attorney, Jeffrey Monzo, disagreed. He said the DNA evidence showed that Foley "could be" a match only because he "may not be able to be excluded."

Monzo acknowledged the two men didn't get along but said prosecutors were "leaping and jumping to a conclusion" in a "desperate attempt" to pin the crime on Foley, who remains on unpaid suspension from the state police.

"You should not confuse a dislike with a motive," Monzo said.

Monzo contends authorities failed to investigate at least three other suspects, including a neighbor to whom Yelenic loaned $15,000 so his wife could start a business. Monzo suggested Yelenic was friendly with the neighbor's wife, which might have given him a motive to kill the dentist.

Foley, 43, is charged with criminal homicide, a catchall charge that gives the jury the option of convicting him of first-degree murder or a lesser degree charge, including manslaughter. If convicted of first-degree murder, Foley would spend life in prison without parole.

A state grand jury presentment said that Yelenic's estranged wife and their adopted son stood to collect on the dentist's estate, including a $1 million life insurance policy. Foley had moved in with Michele Yelenic, the adopted son and her two other children in late 2004.

The grand jury also determined that Michele Yelenic stood to lose about $2,500 a month in support under the couple's divorce settlement, which was days from being approved when the dentist was found murdered.

The trial is expected to last about two weeks.

March 11, 2009

The trial began today for a Pennsylvania state trooper accused of killing his girlfriend's estranged husband.

Kevin Foley, 43, is accused of cutting the throat of John Yelenic, a dentist who was in the final stages of finalizing a divorce from his wife, Michele. According to prosecutors, Foley "loathed Dr. Yelenic" so much that he asked another fellow trooper to help him commit the alleged murder, which occurred in Yelenic's Blairsville home.

Deputy Attorney General Anthony Krastek told an Indiana County jury that Foley also prayed Yelenic would die, and spread false rumors that Yelenic molested his adopted son.

"You will see Kevin Foley has the motive, the opportunity and the ability to commit this crime, almost to the exclusion of anybody else," Krastek said.

Foley's defense attorney, Jeffrey Monzo, said during opening statements that DNA evidence was not conclusive. Monzo admitted to the jury that Foley did not like Yelenic, but said that does not mean he murdered him.

"Kevin Foley is innocent," he said.

Prosecutors said they could call as many as 70 witnesses to try and prove Foley wanted Yelenic to die. The trial, at the Indiana County Courthouse, is expected to last about three weeks.

Foley, who is on unpaid suspension from the Pennsylvania State Police, is charged with criminal homicide. The jury has the option of convicting him of first-degree murder, which could put Foley in prison for life without parole, or of a lesser degree charge, like manslaughter.

John Yelnic was found dead in his home on April 13, 2006, one day before he was planning on signing his divorce papers. Prosecutors said Foley killed Yelenic after going to the dentist's house to confront him over the terms of the divorce. Prosecutors claim Foley slashed Yelenic several times with a knife and pushed his head through a small window, causing a further gash on his neck. Yelenic bled to death.

Foley had been living with Michele Yelenic for two years at the time of the alleged homicide. Krastek said Michele also helped perpetuate rumors that Dr. Yelenic molested their son. John and Michele Yelnic had been separated in 2002. Michele Yelenic stood to collect Dr. Yelenic's estate and a $1 million life insurance policy, and could lose about $2,500 a month in support if the divorce was finalized, a Pennsylvania grand jury previously determined.

Michele Yelenic is expected to testify that Foley was home with her when the alleged murder occurred. Krastek told the jury DNA under Yelenic's fingerprints will ultimately link him to the murder, as will bloody shoe prints found at the crime scene that match athletic shoes Foley is known to wear.

Monzo also said authorities have failed to investigate several other suspects, including Yelenic's neighbor. Monzo said Yelenic was on very friendly terms with the neighbor's wife, which could have given him a motive to commit the murder.

Prior to the trial, Foley's defense attorneys unsuccessfully sought a change of venue because an overwhelming majority of the jury pool was familiar with the allegations. The change was denied when jurors insisted they had not formed an opinion about the charges.

Dentist's Grisly Injuries Described At Pa. Trooper's Trial
Kevin Foley Accused Of Killing Girlfriend's Rich Husband In Indiana County

INDIANA, Pa. -- A well-known forensic pathologist described the brutal injuries suffered by Dr. John Yelenic, as the murder trial for Pennsylvania state police Trooper Kevin Foley entered its second day at the Indiana County Courthouse.

"In my opinion, the assailant was not very happy with Dr. Yelenic," said Dr. Cyril Wecht, a former medical examiner for Allegheny County.

Wecht told the jury on Tuesday morning that Yelenic's throat was slashed from ear to ear and his head was nearly severed inside his Blairsville home in April 2006.

"I think that once you are surprised, wounds are inflicted and you have no weapon of defense other than your arm, and we have a significant defensive wound on the right hand down the back of the right forearm. You're trying to flee and get out of there," Wecht said.

According to his testimony, Wecht believes that Yelenic tried to run out the front door to get away from an attacker, who then smashed the doctor's head through a window pane in the door and the impact sliced Yelenic's jugular. Yelenic was probably alive for another nine minutes before he bled out, Wecht said.

"What kind of emotion is evidenced by the assailant in this case? The multiplicity, the severity of the wounds all denote a passionate scenario. The assailant is someone who is very angry at Dr. Yelenic," Wecht said.

Foley, who was living with Yelenic's soon-to-be ex-wife, Michele, is charged with homicide and remains on unpaid suspension from his job.

Afternoon witnesses included Blairsville police Officer Jill Gaston, who was the first to arrive at Yelenic's home after the death. She testified that Foley had a gash on his face when she interviewed him.

Gaston said Foley told her that he suffered the facial wound playing hockey. His defense lawyers said the mark above his left eyebrow was first described as a "scratch" by Gaston, and only now at the trial did she call it a gash.

Wednesday's witnesses are expected to include some of Foley's co-workers from the state police barracks in Indiana.

Prosecutors allege that Foley got into a violent struggle with Yelenic after going to the doctor's house to confront him over terms of his divorce, which was to be finalized the next day.

In his opening statement, Deputy Attorney General Anthony Krastek said Foley "had a loathing" for Yelenic and tried to have him arrested and talked with other troopers about how he wished for the man's death.

Defense attorney Jeffrey Monzo said his client's personal feelings about Yelenic don't prove that Foley is guilty, and Foley maintains he had nothing to do with the doctor's death.

Foley guilty of 1st-degree murder
By Paul Peirce
TRIBUNE-REVIEW

Thursday, March 19, 2009

An Indiana County jury found a state trooper guilty of first-degree murder for the slaying of Blairsville dentist John Yelenic in 2006.

The seven-man, five-woman jury deliberated just more than five hours, reaching the verdict just after 10 p.m. Wednesday.

Kevin James Foley, 43, of White, who was suspended following his arrest in September 2007, showed no reaction as the guilty verdict was read.

Several family members and friends of Yelenic who attended all eight days of the trial broke down and cried as the verdict was read.

The verdict carries a mandatory penalty of life in prison. Judge William J. Martin scheduled a sentencing hearing for 8:30 a.m. June 1.

Earlier yesterday, Foley repeatedly testified that he did not kill Yelenic.

Foley calmly told the jury, "No, I did not," when his attorney, Richard Galloway, asked whether he killed Yelenic, 39, on April 13, 2006.

Foley was living with the dentist's estranged wife, Michele Yelenic, at the time Yelenic was slashed and stabbed to death in his Blairsville home. The Yelenics were embroiled in a bitter divorce at the time of his death, including allegations of child molestation.

Foley was on the stand for several hours. Just before noon, Senior Deputy Attorney General Anthony Krastek began cross-examining him.

More than 100 people crowded into the spectator gallery to hear Foley's testimony. About 50 people were kept out outside Judge William J. Martin's courtroom because there were not enough seats.

Krastek accused Foley of taking a detour on his way home from a Fraternal Order of Police hockey game in Delmont, stopping in Blairsville and slashing and stabbing Yelenic, then pushing the dentist's head through a window.

Krastek alleges the 13-year trooper was bitter over the Yelenics' pending divorce settlement.

One of the most dramatic moments yesterday occurred when Galloway retrieved an evidence bag and produced Foley's white F.O.P. hockey sweater as evidence.

Numerous state police investigators have testified that they could not find the white sweater during two searches of Foley's home after the slaying.

On cross-examination, Krastek questioned Foley about the numerous times he told fellow state troopers and friends that he wished Yelenic were dead.

"Help me. Is it funny when you asked Trooper Dan Zenisek that you wanted help killing John Yelenic? What's so funny about that? Tell me the joke," Krastek said.

Foley replied, "There isn't any joke. It's just my personality, my behavior (with co-workers)."

Krastek asked "whether they were all jokes" in each instance that he told co-workers and strangers he wanted the dentist dead.

"Yes, sir. I never made a threat with the intention of carrying it out," Foley said.

Blairsville educator's book tackles elementary problems

Leisa Clawson Noel has 17 years of teaching experience and, as a result, possesses a pretty good understanding of the issues most students deal with as they advance through the public education system.

She decided to put those learned lessons down on paper and developed them into a book published in September with the challenging title "Every Elementary School Has a Lot to Learn about Respect."

The book follows four characters as they enter the third grade and face situations any elementary school student might encounter. Along the way, the reader meets the students' parents, teachers and principal and gets Noel's take on the best way to approach the various scenarios.

"I think that everybody needs to look at things from both sides," Noel said. "Parents don't always see what the school is seeing, and the school doesn't always see what the parents are seeing. That's what the whole story brings out, that communication is so important and respect should be the center of everything we do."

Noel lives near Blairsville and is a learning support teacher at West Shamokin Jr.-Sr. High School in the Armstrong School District.

After earning her bachelor's degree in education from Indiana University of Pennsylvania, she initially taught fifth-grade students at schools in Virginia.

She eventually returned to Pennsylvania and to IUP, earning her master's degree in reading. She was employed at Hollidaysburg Area Senior High School before taking her current position.

Noel sat down in 2008 to write what she at first envisioned as a nonfiction book that would offer parents advice on how to deal with the public school system.

But after writing about 30 pages, "I was bored out of my mind," Noel said. She acknowledged that first version read like the procedural safeguards notice that is distributed annually to parents in her school district.

She put the writing project aside for more than a year before seizing on the idea of recasting it as a work of fiction with characters that live through and learn from school-related situations.

"I thought about creating a character and taking that character through school and talking about the family and the parents and what they're going through," she said. "As a learning support teacher, I've talked to a lot of parents, I've raised my own kids, so I've seen it from both ends."

She created four characters in total - Izzy, a learning support student; general ed student Sawyer; Abel, who has attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD); and a gifted student, Hannah.

Once she resumed work on the reconceived book, it took Noel a little over a year to finish writing it.

"Once I figured out what I was doing, it was easy," she said.

She completed most of the writing while her own kids were at practice sessions for various sports or faced a waiting period between tournaments.

"That's where I could write," she said. "When I wasn't around kids, I had a really hard time writing."

For research, Noel recalled her own days as an elementary school student as well as the lessons she'd learned as a mother and the school experiences related by her two natural children, two adopted children and two stepchildren, who range in age from 12 to 26. She also took some of the many scenarios she's seen played out in public schools and applied them the group of third-grade characters she created.

In her tale, cheerleader Izzy doesn't want to tell her mother about an ear infection that won't go away because she doesn't want to miss cheering at the last football game of the year.

Holding back that information, though, leads to problems at school for the girl because she can't hear things correctly, and she ultimately ends up in the hospital.

Meanwhile, Sawyer has grown bigger than most kids his age and loves to play football. But his atypical size causes older kids to bully him.

Abel is excited when some girls at school teach him to do cartwheels but is teased by some other boys who think gymnastics are just for girls. Lastly, Hannah struggles with her intelligence, downplaying her intellect in order to fit in better at school.

Noel also introduces readers to each character's family, their teachers and Mrs. Travail, a teacher-turned-principal who fights for the kids' right to recess.

The book's target audience originally was parents of school-age children, but Noel realized, "If I keep this written at the fifth-grade level, this could be something kids could get a lot of out of, too, identifying with the characters."

Several friends who are fellow teachers helped Noel edit her finished product, and they pointed out it could be good for teachers as well, helping them to recognize situations within their classrooms and how to react to them.

Noel also has university staff reading it to determine if it could be used in teacher training.

In the spring of 2011, Noel sent the finished manuscript to four publishing companies. The following July, Tate Publishing and Enterprises agreed to release the book, Noel said. It may have helped that the company representative she talked with had a friend who had just been through some of the scenarios covered in the book.

It took a full year to get through publishing process, according to Noel, "But boy, was it worth it when I had that book in my hands for the first time," she said.

As a reference for herself as she wrote, Noel drew sketeches of each of her characters using Microsoft Paint software.

She said the book's illustrator, Tate Publishing's Liz Holt, "did a fantastic job of creating those characters from my crummy little dot-matrix drawing. She wanted to know what they were wearing, how they would stand. She was fantastic to work with."

Noel has already started writing a proposed second book in the series, which will follow the characters into middle school. And because middle schoolers are more social, new characters will be introduced, she said.

"Every Elementary School Has a Lot to Learn about Respect" can be ordered in print and e-book form online at <http://leisanoel.tateauthor.com>. Hard copies also can be found at Amazon and in local Barnes & Noble stores.

Noel will also have books available to purchase at two book-signing events planned in the area, the first being 1-3 p.m. Saturday at the Blairsville Public Library. She will also appear at 2 p.m. Dec. 1 at the Greensburg Barnes & Noble store.

The book retails for $23.99, but copies will be available for a reduced rate at the library event.

Blairsville Family Goes 'Krazy' For Karts

By Jeff Himler, Staff writer

Friday, August 1, 2003

BLAIRSVILLE-George Clawson, his son, Dennis, and grandson, Zack, have a one-track mind for racing.

Over the past eight years, the Clawsons have become so revved up over go-kart competitions, they've opened their own dirt race track near the family's dairy farm off Rt. 217 in Blacklick Township.

Though there have been delays and cancellations due to rain, George said kart competitors and fans have responded enthusiastically to this summer's initial season of racing at the Blairsville Kart Track.

With races scheduled every Sunday afternoon, through at least Aug. 31, the weekly events have attracted anywhere from 38 to 68 entrants on a given day.

"It's been very well taken for the first year," said George.

"This is mostly a family thing. People go to church in the morning and then they come to the track with their campers and cook on the grill."

Spectators bring their lawn chairs to enjoy a view of the action, as the ground-hugging vehicles of plastic or fiberglass round the one-fifth mile oval course.

Dennis noted, kart racers have come to the Blairsville track "from as far north as Mercer, from Uniontown to the south, from the other side of Pittsburgh in the west and from Somerset and Altoona to the east."

There is no upper age limit for participants in four senior kart racing categories. "We've had some guys who were in their 50s," George noted.

But, most importantly, he said, the kart events provide an alternate summer activity for bored youngsters between ages 5 and 15.

"These kids need something to do," George said, noting parents usually accompany the young racers to help them get their karts prepared for a trip around the track.

"At least I know where my son is," Dennis said about the racing pastime he shares with 11-year-old Zack.

"He enjoys it, and it's something we can do together. We have our competitions with other people, but me and him can still work together on our karts."

While they might not describe it as a relaxing hobby, most fans would agree go-kart racing provides plenty of diversion.

That's why George started the Clawson clan on the go-kart craze. He explained he ventured into the hobby to help calm nerves frayed by the stress of making ends meet on the farm.

"You have to keep stretching things more and more," he said of the dairy operation's budget. So, "My doctor told me to stop thinking so much about the farm and find something else I could do to relax."

Nowadays, he stays mostly behind the scenes or in the trackside pit, leaving the driving up to Dennis and Zack.

George said, "Every now and then, they'll talk me into entering a mechanics' race," a novelty event which pits pit crew members against each other.

It was Dennis' growing passion for the sport which gave rise to the Clawsons' new track.

George noted the family began developing the track on a corner of the farm in about 1998 so Dennis would have a place where he could practice. They shaped clay available at the site into an oblong track with turns banked at about seven degrees.

They began inviting other friends who frequented the kart racing circuit to use the facility--squeezing in more track time in the fall, after the competitive season was over at other commercial ovals in Acme, Kittanning and DuBois.

At the urging of area drivers and fans, the Clawsons decided this year to adopt a formal race schedule and invite paying participants and spectators.

"That's how most of the tracks got started," noted Dennis.

"A lot of people start with these (karts) and then slowly move up," to more powerful race cars, Dennis said.

But, "I'm sticking with (kart racing) because of my son," he said, explaining Zack is too young to race larger vehicles.

Regulations can vary from one kart track to another. There are nine competitive classes recognized at the Blairsville track--based partly on the age of the driver and partly on the minimum combined weight of the entrant and his vehicle.

George pointed out, "A lighter weight person has an advantage over a heavier person," when speeding to the finish line.

To assure that the competition is fair, the racers must drive their karts onto a large scale to be weighed after each event.

Dennis Clawson tips the scale at 180 pounds. But his combined weight with his plastic-bodied "Lazer" model kart places him in the "senior medium" class--for competitors who are 16 years of age or older and have a combined weight with their vehicle of at least 350 pounds.

Zack climbs into a smaller "Predator" kart, racing in the "junior cage" class for those ages 9 to 14. In that division, the combined weight of kart and driver should be at least 290 pounds, which is heavier than either the junior rookie or junior stock classes.

Also, unlike the other junior classes, the cage category requires that the kart be fitted with a protective metal roll cage extending entirely up around the driver. For safety's sake, the racer also must wear a "four-point" shoulder and lap belt harness.

The youngest racers, ages 5-8, enter in the "pee wee" division, where a cage and a harness also are required.

Regardless of competitive class, George noted all race entrants must wear long sleeves and long pants, a helmet and a foam neck brace to guard against whiplash.

For each class, the field of entrants runs two 10-lap heats, the results of which will determine their line-up for the main feature race.

Most features last for either 15 laps or 20 minutes, whichever comes first, counting caution-related slow-downs and delays. For pee wee racers, the feature also is limited to 10 laps.

George explained the number of entrants in each division determines the prize payout to the top finishers in that week's feature race.

Trophies also are awarded weekly, while accumulated points will determine additional prizes and bragging rights at a season-ending banquet at a date and location to be announced this fall.

Final season points will be tallied following the Aug. 31 race, but Clawson noted additional purse races will continue into September as long as weather permits.

Compared to other racing formats, Dennis has found that go kart events are "not a real cutthroat competition. It's more family-oriented," with seasoned racers usually willing to share tips with less-experienced enthusiasts of the sport.

He noted most kart racers, when vying for the lead down the stretch, "try to pass clean, without knocking anybody off the track."

Still, accidents can occur when a cluster of karts is entering one of the track's banked turns, at speeds of between 50 and 60 mph.

Said Dennis, "When you go into the corner too fast, (the kart) wants to slide around in a circle; your back end will pass up the front end. When you lose traction, you can get tangled up" with other karts.

As in other levels of racing, a mechanical or driver mishap involving one or more karts brings out the yellow caution flag, requiring all drivers to slow down and maintain their current positions on the track.

Once the problem is sorted out, the driver charged with causing the caution episode is sent to the rear of the field. If a driver triggers three caution flags, he will be disqualified from that particular race.

At the Blairsville Kart Track, the Clawsons have chosen to follow engine standards issued by the World Karting Association (WKA).

All karts are equipped with a Briggs and Stratton 5HP engine, the same type which powers most lawn mowers. The karts run on alcohol, except for the pee wee class, which allows fueling with either gasoline or alcohol.

All competitors must have karts equipped with Burris brand tires, which are manufactured locally in Indiana and are used at a number of other area tracks.

With a standard brand and a required slick tread, Dennis explained, "You know the tires didn't beat you," as opposed to the skill and know-how of the driver and his pit crew.

But, Dennis noted, a number of other factors involving both the kart and tires should be adjusted for optimum racing results, given the conditions of a particular track on a given day. While too much dampness will result in a race cancellation, Dennis noted a certain amount of rainfall is desirable to firm up the track's loose clay surface and to control dust.

He explained tires can be had which use different compounds, providing a range of softness or hardness for preferred traction. Changing the pressure can further fine-tune a tire's grip on the clay track.

Regarding the kart itself, Dennis noted, a driver can make fractional adjustments to a series of washers, shifting weight among the front and rear and left and right sides of the vehicle. "If it's not set up right, you can turn the steering wheel and the kart will keep going straight," he said.

Engine sprockets also may be adjusted, to affect the rpm of the kart's motor.

"Your engine builder can tell you at what rpm the engine gets its maximum output," George explained. "So you run for that rpm."

While about 3,000 rpm is the normal level for a Briggs and Stratton engine, Dennis said, "I turn mine to 7,000," as do many other older racers in the senior classes.

But, he added, "You don't want a little kid turning the motor that fast."

Younger competitors must install a restrictor to limit the air flow to their engines.

All that practice calculating minute adjustments to his kart has given Zack a head start in mastering math concepts at school, his father noted. "It's helped him with percentages and fractions because they mean something to him."

Educational experts may debate the difference in math skills between male and female students.

But, Dennis indicated, female kart drivers have proven they can hold their own with their male counterparts.

While there are "powder puff" races for "girlfriends and wives" who tag along with male drivers, that doesn't stop female competitors from hitting the track in the main feature race. About 10 of the regular racers who compete at Blairsville are female. As of July 13, Jennifer Galbraith was leading in points among the junior rookie division.

Dennis noted drivers of the the opposite sex he's encountered are just as aggressive in their pursuit of victory as any male racer. "I've been beat quite a few times" by members of the female contingent, he said.

He added that a female IUP student has been a mainstay at the Hunter Hill dirt track near Mount Pleasant. "I've raced against her for six or seven years."

Looking ahead to next season, the Clawsons have installed overhead lights and are proposing to hold weekly races on Saturday evenings instead of Sunday afternoons.

There will be advantages for the racers in switching to an evening schedule, Dennis said: "It's not as hot for the people, and the track won't be as dusty."

Also, George noted, it will allow the Clawsons and their many track assistants to once more attend Sunday morning church services.

As it is now, he said, "We have to be out at 9 in the morning to get the track ready."

The Clawsons drafted Paul and Georgeann Fess, who operate Hunter Hill, to supply kart parts for participants making last minute repairs or adjust ments at the track.

To fill the many crew positions at the track, they turned to some fellow kart enthusiasts from Derry--William and Bev Heckathorn and their extended family.

"Without them, we wouldn't be able to do this," George noted. "They handle the scorekeeping, watching the scales, flagging the races, signing people in and running the concession stand."

Based on the track's success this year, George is hoping to link up with the Pennsylvania Dirt Karters Association next summer.

He would like the Blairsville site to host one of a series of PDKA events which are scheduled at tracks throughout the state.

If the special event can be arranged, George noted, local kart racers will have a chance to test their mettle in a different level of competition, pitted against drivers who travel all around the state in pursuit of their sport.

Since there are no other tracks participating in the PDKA circuit in western Pennsylvania, "It will draw in some big (competitors)," George predicted. "It will mean a lot of karts."

Current Sunday races at the Blairsville track begin at 2 p.m. The gates open at 11 a.m.

Carrie Deane Clawson

July 25, 1924 - April 9, 2020

95, formerly of Bolivar, died Thursday, April 9, 2020 at Newhaven Court at Linwood, Greensburg. She was born July 25, 1924 in Robinson, a daughter of the late Joseph and Mary Donahue Hall. She resided in Bolivar most of her life and was highly respected and known beyond the boundaries of the town.

Carrie Deane was "famous" for her scrumptious home-made bread, rolls, cinnamon buns, cakes, pies, and more. All of her grandchildren and great grandchildren as well as many others are proud owners of her crocheted blankets. For many years, her Bolivar neighbors and friends canned beets, made garden special, and more in her well suited basement. She provided, over the years, donated baked goods to churches and elder care homes. Perhaps, though, she is best remembered as an extremely gracious, loving, kind, mother, and grandmother. Nothing was more important to Carrie Deane than her family, neighbors, and friends. In addition to her parents she was predeceased by her loving husband, William Z. Clawson who died in 2002 and these siblings: Isabell, Grace, Joseph, Patty, and Charlotte. She is survived by two sons, William (Betty) Clawson, Dennis (Carol) Clawson, a sister, Betty Graymus, a brother, Paul Hall, five grandchildren: Billie Sue (Dave) Early, Kimberly Clawson, Adam (Carolyn) Clawson, Stephanie (Mike) Zezzo and Suzanne (John) Dzvonick who all loved her and spent many days and nights learning how to cook and bake. She is also survived by these great-grandchildren: Daniel and Matthew Early, Ashley Victoriana, Breanna, Danielle, and Evan Clawson, Cole and Sophia Zezzo and Lydia and Lucas Dzvoncik, and numerous nieces and nephews. The family wishes to acknowledge the love and care provided by the Bolivar "family." Super special thanks goes to Pat Skavang and Katthy Griffith as well as Michael Robertson who were there every step of the way. Many, many other relatives, neighbors, and friends are also thanked for friendly visits, occasional personal care, and the delivery of delicious food. A huge thank you is to be given to Newhaven Court's highly skilled and caring staff and the nurses and staff from Bridges Hospice. A private graveside burial will take place at the Bolivar Westview Cemetery at the convenience of the family. A well deserved memorial service will be held at a later time and date to be announced. Carrie Deane Clawson

95, formerly of Bolivar, died Thursday, April 9, 2020 at Newhaven Court at Linwood, Greensburg. She was born July 25, 1924 in Robinson, a daughter of the late Joseph and Mary Donahue Hall. She resided in Bolivar most of her life and was highly respected and known beyond the boundaries of the town.

Carrie Deane was "famous" for her scrumptious home-made bread, rolls, cinnamon buns, cakes, pies, and more. All of her grandchildren and great grandchildren as well as many others are proud owners of her crocheted blankets. For many years, her Bolivar neighbors and friends canned beets, made garden special, and more in her well suited basement. She provided, over the years, donated baked goods to churches and elder care homes. Perhaps, though, she is best remembered as an extremely gracious, loving, kind, mother, and grandmother. Nothing was more important to Carrie Deane than her family, neighbors, and friends. In addition to her parents she was predeceased by her loving husband, William Z. Clawson who died in 2002 and these siblings: Isabell, Grace, Joseph, Patty, and Charlotte. She is survived by two sons, William (Betty) Clawson, Dennis (Carol) Clawson, a sister, Betty Graymus, a brother, Paul Hall, five grandchildren: Billie Sue (Dave) Early, Kimberly Clawson, Adam (Carolyn) Clawson, Stephanie (Mike) Zezzo and Suzanne (John) Dzvonick who all loved her and spent many days and nights learning how to cook and bake. Ross E. Clawson, age 75, of Massillon died in Beacon Pointe Rehabilitation Center at Uhrichsville following a lengthy illness.

He was born May 4, 1933, at New Kensington, Pa., a son of the late Kenneth G. and Alta M. (Crail) Clawson.

Ross resided most of his life in Massillon and was a graduate of Massillon Washington High School Class of 1951. He had also resided in Uhrichsville for eight years. He had been employed by Central State Can Co., Union Drawn and LTV Steel for many years. He was a member of Chapel of the Cross United Methodist Church of North Lawrence and was a member of the choir. Ross was a well-known Gospel vocalist traveling throughout Stark and Tuscarawas County. He served as a scout master for many years, a former member of the Greater Canton Men's Chorus and the Massillon Senior Community Choir. Ross was a member of VFW Post 5407 at Navarre. He was a Korean War veteran, having served in the U.S. Navy aboard the USS Quincy.

Ross enjoyed woodworking, gardening, canning, cooking and until his health failed, he enjoyed hunting and camping.

One week prior to his passing, he managed to drive to the store to get a birthday card for his daughter, Diane. He wanted so badly to get her a gift, but his health would not let him make a second trip.

Seeing his frailty and his concern over not getting her a gift, the night before his passing Diane made this request of her father, "he could give her the gift of going home to be with the Lord to end his suffering and blend his beautiful singing voice with the heavenly choir." On Wednesday, Aug. 27, 2008, his daughter's birthday, he presented her this loving gift.

He is survived by two daughters and a son; Diane (Michael) Reese of Gnadenhutten, Debra Clawson and Steven Clawson of Massillon. He also is survived by seven grandchildren, a sister Eileen (James) Schumacher of Dalton, and a sister-in-law, Betty Clawson of Massillon.

In addition to his parents, he was preceded in death by a brother, Kenneth G. Clawson Jr.

Military honors will be held Tuesday, Sept. 2, 2008, at 10 a.m. by the Newcomerstown Veterans Honor Guard at the Veterans Memorial in the Gnadenhutten Cemetery. A memorial service celebrating Ross' life will be held at a later date.

The family requests that any memorials be made to University of Pittsburgh Medical Center Melanoma Research, Forbes Tower Suite 8084, 3600 Forbes Ave. at Meyran Ave. Pittsburgh, Pa., 15213.

Notes for Robert Afton Hotchkiss Sr.:

The world is a little less interesting these days! On November 11, 2015, Robert Afton Hotchkiss rung down the curtain and joined the choir invisible. He spent the last years, months, weeks, days, and moments of his life surrounded by those he loved and those who loved him. As a lifelong patriot, Bob fittingly chose Veteran's Day to win his final battle.

Born March 10, 1939, Robert was the first born to Afton and Marion Hotchkiss in Buffalo, N.Y and big brother to David and John (Helen). His family moved to Wilmington, Delaware when he was 16, although Bob considered himself a Buffalonian the rest of his life.

On July 11, 1955, Bob's life was forever changed when he literally met the girl next door, Gail (Sue)

McHugh. He graduated from Salesianum High School in 1957 and went on to get his Bachelor's degree in Economics from the University of Delaware. His love and appreciation for his Salesian Brothers only strengthened over time.

Bob and Sue were married on April 29, 1961 and shared 54 years of love, laughter, tears and more laughter together. They had 4 children, Robert A. Hotchkiss, Jr. (Judy), Mimi Edwards (Tim), Pam Kitchens (Rene) and Jennifer Barrasso (John). The Hotchkiss Clan grew to include 14 grandchildren who adored their "Tata". Paul, Alexa, Taylor, Tucker, Walker, Madison, Conor, Michaela, Dylan, Matthew, Wyatt, Abigail, Keely, and Tigue loved his childlike playfulness, Willey the Skunk Stories and especially the annual pilgrimage to the Outer Banks of North Carolina for a week of Camp Chaos.

Besides building a family and home filled with laughter and love, Bob was equally as successful in his professional and military careers. He joined the DuPont Company as an advertising assistant in 1962. His unwavering work ethic, masterful use of words and ability to connect with people led to many promotions over his career. He retired from DuPont after 30 years and went on to work for ICI Acrylics/Huntsman. He traveled extensively throughout his career, collecting lifelong professional friendships all over the world.

Bob's love for his country started at a young age as a cadet in the Civil Air Patrol, eventually rising to the rank of Major and serving as Vice Commander of the Delaware Wing. He went on to a successful 38 year military career that began when he enlisted as an Airman Basic in the Delaware Air National Guard. Following basic training he was assigned to the public affairs section of the 142 Tactical Fighter Squadron. In 1962 he was commissioned as a 2nd Lieutenant and assigned as Personnel Officer in the 166 Air Transport Group (Heavy). He was later assigned as the Group Information Staff Officer, where as Editor of the DANG Truth, he won the first prize in the National Guard Association's annual contest, and the Tactical Air Command's Award for Art and Writing. For eleven years he served as Commander of the 166 Combat Support Squadron. In 1991 he transferred to State Headquarters where he was promoted to Colonel and served as Public Affairs Staff Officer until eventually retiring as a Brigadier General in 1995.

Service was a continuing theme for Bob into retirement. He was a Member of St. Ann's Parish and served as a lector, member of Finance and Parish Councils and President of St. Vincent DePaul Society. He served on the Board of Catholic Ministry to the Elderly, was a Section Representative and Knight of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem and recipient of the Diocesan Order of Merit Award from the Diocese of Wilmington.

There will be a visitation on Monday, November 16 from 6-8 PM at Mealey's Funeral Home, 2509 Limestone Road Wilmington, DE 19808. A mass of Christian burial will be held at St. Ann's Catholic Church, 2013 Gilpin Avenue, Wilmington, DE 19806 on Tuesday, November 17 at 10 AM. Interment will follow at All Saints Cemetery.

The Hotchkiss Family has been overwhelmed by the abundant expression of care and concern throughout Bob's illness. We would like to take a moment to especially thank Dan McCardle for graciously becoming Bob's personal pilot and Dr. Collette Mehring and Dr. Eric Martin for their compassionate approach to caring for the body as well as the human spirit. In lieu of flowers the family requests donations to the Rev. William Keech O.S.F.S. Scholarship Fund at Salesianum School 1801 N. Broom Street Wilmington, DE 19802 or St. Ann's Parish St. Vincent DePaul Society 2013 Gilpin, Ave. Wilmington, DE 19806. MealeyFuneralHomes.com (302) 652-591

Notes for David Leroy Hotchkiss:

David Leroy "Sticker" Hotchkiss, age 81 of Landenberg, PA, passed away peacefully on January 24, 2023.

Born in Buffalo, N.Y. on April 28th, Dave was the middle son of Marion and Afton Hotchkiss and brother to Robert (Sue) and John (Helen). After spending the early years upstate, the family moved to Wilmington, DE, where he attended Salesianum High School, graduating in 1959. He joined the DuPont Company, working for over 30 years in Fibers Marketing, where he enjoyed traveling extensively in Europe, Latin and South America until his retirement.

Dave served his country in the Delaware Air National Guard as an Aerospace Propulsion Technician with the 166th MXS (Maintenance Squadron) and retired as a Master Sergeant (MSgt) after 36 years. He had a long connection throughout his life with the water, whether it was the years he spent beneath it up and down the East coast with his scuba club, on it boating and fishing with family and friends, or near it just relaxing on the beach with a book and a cooler. If you didn't find him spending time with his grandsons, working on one of the many endless projects in and around the house, or catching a couple races at Delaware Park, odds are he was having something to eat and sharing laughs with friends at Feby's.

In addition to his parents, Dave was predeceased by his brother, Robert Hotchkiss.

He will be dearly missed by his brother John, sons Derek Hotchkiss (Tamie) and Brian Hotchkiss (Amber) and his grandchildren, the source of his pride and joy, Jakob, Devon, Nathan and Gavin Hotchkiss.

A Mass of Christian Burial will be held on Wednesday, February 1st at 10:00 AM at St. John the Baptist Church, 200 E Main St, Newark, DE 19711. Interment will follow at All Saints Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that memorial contributions be made to the American Lung Association.

Blairsville Family Goes 'Krazy' For Karts

By Jeff Himler, Staff writer

Friday, August 1, 2003

BLAIRSVILLE-George Clawson, his son, Dennis, and grandson, Zack, have a one-track mind for racing. Over the past eight years, the Clawsons have become so revved up over go-kart competitions, they've opened their own dirt race track near the family's dairy farm off Rt. 217 in Blacklick Township.

Though there have been delays and cancellations due to rain, George said kart competitors and fans have responded enthusiastically to this summer's initial season of racing at the Blairsville Kart Track. With races scheduled every Sunday afternoon, through at least Aug. 31, the weekly events have attracted anywhere from 38 to 68 entrants on a given day.

"It's been very well taken for the first year," said George.

"This is mostly a family thing. People go to church in the morning and then they come to the track with their campers and cook on the grill."

Spectators bring their lawn chairs to enjoy a view of the action, as the ground-hugging vehicles of plastic or fiberglass round the one-fifth mile oval course.

Dennis noted, kart racers have come to the Blairsville track "from as far north as Mercer, from Uniontown to the south, from the other side of Pittsburgh in the west and from Somerset and Altoona to the east."

There is no upper age limit for participants in four senior kart racing categories. "We've had some guys who were in their 50s," George noted.

But, most importantly, he said, the kart events provide an alternate summer activity for bored youngsters between ages 5 and 15.

"These kids need something to do," George said, noting parents usually accompany the young racers to help them get their karts prepared for a trip around the track.

"At least I know where my son is," Dennis said about the racing pastime he shares with 11-year-old Zack.

"He enjoys it, and it's something we can do together. We have our competitions with other people, but me and him can still work together on our karts."

While they might not describe it as a relaxing hobby, most fans would agree go-kart racing provides plenty of diversion.

That's why George started the Clawson clan on the go-kart craze. He explained he ventured into the hobby to help calm nerves frayed by the stress of making ends meet on the farm.

"You have to keep stretching things more and more," he said of the dairy operation's budget. So, "My doctor told me to stop thinking so much about the farm and find something else I could do to relax."

Nowadays, he stays mostly behind the scenes or in the trackside pit, leaving the driving up to Dennis and Zack.

George said, "Every now and then, they'll talk me into entering a mechanics' race," a novelty event which pits pit crew members against each other.

It was Dennis' growing passion for the sport which gave rise to the Clawsons' new track.

George noted the family began developing the track on a corner of the farm in about 1998 so Dennis would have a place where he could practice. They shaped clay available at the site into an oblong track with turns banked at about seven degrees.

They began inviting other friends who frequented the kart racing circuit to use the facility--squeezing in more track time in the fall, after the competitive season was over at other commercial ovals in Acme, Kittanning and DuBois.

At the urging of area drivers and fans, the Clawsons decided this year to adopt a formal race schedule and invite paying participants and spectators.

"That's how most of the tracks got started," noted Dennis.

"A lot of people start with these (karts) and then slowly move up," to more powerful race cars, Dennis said.

But, "I'm sticking with (kart racing) because of my son," he said, explaining Zack is too young to race larger vehicles.

Regulations can vary from one kart track to another. There are nine competitive classes recognized at the Blairsville track--based partly on the age of the driver and partly on the minimum combined weight of the entrant and his vehicle.

George pointed out, "A lighter weight person has an advantage over a heavier person," when speeding to the finish line.

To assure that the competition is fair, the racers must drive their karts onto a large scale to be weighed after each event.

Dennis Clawson tips the scale at 180 pounds. But his combined weight with his plastic-bodied "Lazer" model kart places him in the "senior medium" class--for competitors who are 16 years of age or older and have a combined weight with their vehicle of at least 350 pounds.

Zack climbs into a smaller "Predator" kart, racing in the "junior cage" class for those ages 9 to 14. In that division, the combined weight of kart and driver should be at least 290 pounds, which is heavier than either the junior rookie or junior stock classes.

Also, unlike the other junior classes, the cage category requires that the kart be fitted with a protective metal roll cage extending entirely up around the driver. For safety's sake, the racer also must wear a "four-point" shoulder and lap belt harness.

The youngest racers, ages 5-8, enter in the "pee wee" division, where a cage and a harness also are required.

Regardless of competitive class, George noted all race entrants must wear long sleeves and long pants, a helmet and a foam neck brace to guard against whiplash.

For each class, the field of entrants runs two 10-lap heats, the results of which will determine their line-up for the main feature race.

Most features last for either 15 laps or 20 minutes, whichever comes first, counting caution-related slow-downs and delays. For pee wee racers, the feature also is limited to 10 laps.

George explained the number of entrants in each division determines the prize payout to the top finishers in that week's feature race.

Trophies also are awarded weekly, while accumulated points will determine additional prizes and bragging rights at a season-ending banquet at a date and location to be announced this fall.

Final season points will be tallied following the Aug. 31 race, but Clawson noted additional purse races will continue into September as long as weather permits.

Compared to other racing formats, Dennis has found that go kart events are "not a real cutthroat competition. It's more family-oriented," with seasoned racers usually willing to share tips with less-experienced enthusiasts of the sport.

He noted most kart racers, when vying for the lead down the stretch, "try to pass clean, without knocking anybody off the track."

Still, accidents can occur when a cluster of karts is entering one of the track's banked turns, at speeds of between 50 and 60 mph.

Said Dennis, "When you go into the corner too fast, (the kart) wants to slide around in a circle; your back end will pass up the front end. When you lose traction, you can get tangled up" with other karts.

As in other levels of racing, a mechanical or driver mishap involving one or more karts brings out the yellow caution flag, requiring all drivers to slow down and maintain their current positions on the track.

Once the problem is sorted out, the driver charged with causing the caution episode is sent to the rear of the field. If a driver triggers three caution flags, he will be disqualified from that particular race.

At the Blairsville Kart Track, the Clawsons have chosen to follow engine standards issued by the World Karting Association (WKA).

All karts are equipped with a Briggs and Stratton 5HP engine, the same type which powers most lawn mowers. The karts run on alcohol, except for the pee wee class, which allows fueling with either gasoline or alcohol.

All competitors must have karts equipped with Burris brand tires, which are manufactured locally in Indiana and are used at a number of other area tracks.

With a standard brand and a required slick tread, Dennis explained, "You know the tires didn't beat you," as opposed to the skill and know-how of the driver and his pit crew.

But, Dennis noted, a number of other factors involving both the kart and tires should be adjusted for optimum racing results, given the conditions of a particular track on a given day.

While too much dampness will result in a race cancellation, Dennis noted a certain amount of rainfall is desirable to firm up the track's loose clay surface and to control dust.

He explained tires can be had which use different compounds, providing a range of softness or hardness for preferred traction. Changing the pressure can further fine-tune a tire's grip on the clay track.

Regarding the kart itself, Dennis noted, a driver can make fractional adjustments to a series of washers, shifting weight among the front and rear and left and right sides of the vehicle.

"If it's not set up right, you can turn the steering wheel and the kart will keep going straight," he said.

Engine sprockets also may be adjusted, to affect the rpm of the kart's motor.

"Your engine builder can tell you at what rpm the engine gets its maximum output," George explained.

"So you run for that rpm."

While about 3,000 rpm is the normal level for a Briggs and Stratton engine, Dennis said, "I turn mine to 7,000," as do many other older racers in the senior classes.

But, he added, "You don't want a little kid turning the motor that fast."

Younger competitors must install a restrictor to limit the air flow to their engines.

All that practice calculating minute adjustments to his kart has given Zack a head start in mastering math concepts at school, his father noted. "It's helped him with percentages and fractions because they mean something to him."

Educational experts may debate the difference in math skills between male and female students.

But, Dennis indicated, female kart drivers have proven they can hold their own with their male counterparts.

While there are "powder puff" races for "girlfriends and wives" who tag along with male drivers, that doesn't stop female competitors from hitting the track in the main feature race.

About 10 of the regular racers who compete at Blairsville are female. As of July 13, Jennifer Galbraith was leading in points among the junior rookie division.

Dennis noted drivers of the the opposite sex he's encountered are just as aggressive in their pursuit of victory as any male racer. "I've been beat quite a few times" by members of the female contingent, he said.

He added that a female IUP student has been a mainstay at the Hunter Hill dirt track near Mount Pleasant. "I've raced against her for six or seven years."

Looking ahead to next season, the Clawsons have installed overhead lights and are proposing to hold weekly races on Saturday evenings instead of Sunday afternoons.

There will be advantages for the racers in switching to an evening schedule, Dennis said: "It's not as hot for the people, and the track won't be as dusty."

Also, George noted, it will allow the Clawsons and their many track assistants to once more attend Sunday morning church services.

As it is now, he said, "We have to be out at 9 in the morning to get the track ready."

The Clawsons drafted Paul and Georgeann Fess, who operate Hunter Hill, to supply kart parts for participants making last minute repairs or adjustments at the track.

To fill the many crew positions at the track, they turned to some fellow kart enthusiasts from Derry--William and Bev Heckathorn and their extended family.

"Without them, we wouldn't be able to do this," George noted. "They handle the scorekeeping, watching the scales, flagging the races, signing people in and running the concession stand."

Based on the track's success this year, George is hoping to link up with the Pennsylvania Dirt Karters Association next summer.

He would like the Blairsville site to host one of a series of PDKA events which are scheduled at tracks throughout the state.

If the special event can be arranged, George noted, local kart racers will have a chance to test their mettle in a different level of competition, pitted against drivers who travel all around the state in pursuit of their sport.

Since there are no other tracks participating in the PDKA circuit in western Pennsylvania, "It will draw in some big (competitors)," George predicted. "It will mean a lot of karts."

Current Sunday races at the Blairsville track begin at 2 p.m. The gates open at 11 a.m.

Ruth was born June 29, 1926, in East Wheatfield Township. She graduated from Armagh East Wheatfield High School in 1943. She married Michael Svilar on July 21, 1945. They raised their two children, Sandra, and David. They lovingly raised Mike's youngest brother, Daniel Svilar, after losing his mother at a young age. Ruth made sure Danny was treated like her own son. He preceded Ruth in death. Despite being widowed at age 48, Ruth remained positive and strong. Ruth was blessed with four great-grandchildren. She would light up at the sound of their voices making their way to her apartment. She found immense joy in her family. She participated in all family gatherings and events until the time of her death. Ruth was a member of Bethel United Presbyterian Church. She was a former member of the Indiana Country Club. She volunteered at the St. Vincent de Paul Thrift Store, where she was known for her 'ironing skills'. She was an avid fan of the Pittsburgh Penguins and the Steelers. She enjoyed trips to the casinos and bingo nights. Ruth is survived by daughter, Sandra Svilar of Ligonier; her son, M. David and his wife, Elizabeth of Indiana. Surviving her are her grandchildren, Stephanie Svilar, of Pittsburgh, Ryan and his wife, Sarah; and their children, Eliza and Violet of Greensburg, Michael J. and wife, Katelynn; and their children, Adalynn and Quentin of Indiana. Ruth is also survived by her youngest brother, William I. Mack of Clyde. She was preceded in death by her parents; husband; and the following siblings, Donald E. Mack, Gladys M. Over his career as a police officer, he was a DARE Officer, Juvenile Officer, Field Training Instructor, Basic Training Instructor for the Finger Lakes Law Enforcement Academy, and numerous other certifications. Jim retired in 2014, having completed 39 and a half years in law enforcement.

Throughout his life, Jim served his community in many ways. In 1974, Jim achieved the Eagle Scout award, the highest rank in scouting. He was a Boy Scout Leader and Committee Chairman for Pack and Troop 126. During his leadership, his three sons achieved the rank of Eagle Scout, as well. He was a Little League Baseball Coach for the Ontario Recreation Association for several years. He was a member of the Ridge Christian Softball Team and played shortstop and then 3rd Base for St. Mary's of the Lake Church.

Jim was elected as councilman and served on the zoning board for the town of Ontario. He was recently elected to the Wayne Central School District Board of Education. Jim became a Free & Accepted Mason, following in his father's footsteps. He served as the Master of Wayne Lodge #416 in Ontario for 2 years and assisted the merger with the Marion Lodge. He served as a trustee and assisted with numerous community events during the past several years.

He joined the Blue Knights IV Motorcycle club and took many rides around NYS and the East coast. He loved his motorcycle and the wonderful friends he met along the way. He was an avid Hunter in his early years, loved camping with friends, fishing, traveling, and playing with his grandchildren.

Jim was a friend to all who knew him. He cherished his family and friends, was a quick wit and able to give reasonably good advice to all who sought his wisdom. He loved history and was the master of useless trivia. He will be sorely missed.

Family and friends may gather for visitation from 4-8 PM on Monday (February 22) at St. Mary's of the Lake Church, 5823 Walworth Rd., Ontario, NY. To best accommodate those who wish to attend with

Blairsville Family Goes 'Krazy' For Karts

By Jeff Himler, Staff writer

Friday, August 1, 2003

BLAIRSVILLE-George Clawson, his son, Dennis, and grandson, Zack, have a one-track mind for racing. Over the past eight years, the Clawsons have become so revved up over go-kart competitions, they've opened their own dirt race track near the family's dairy farm off Rt. 217 in Blacklick Township.

Though there have been delays and cancellations due to rain, George said kart competitors and fans have responded enthusiastically to this summer's initial season of racing at the Blairsville Kart Track. With races scheduled every Sunday afternoon, through at least Aug. 31, the weekly events have attracted anywhere from 38 to 68 entrants on a given day.

"It's been very well taken for the first year," said George.

"This is mostly a family thing. People go to church in the morning and then they come to the track with their campers and cook on the grill."

Spectators bring their lawn chairs to enjoy a view of the action, as the ground-hugging vehicles of plastic or fiberglass round the one-fifth mile oval course.

Dennis noted, kart racers have come to the Blairsville track "from as far north as Mercer, from Uniontown to the south, from the other side of Pittsburgh in the west and from Somerset and Altoona to the east."

There is no upper age limit for participants in four senior kart racing categories. "We've had some guys who were in their 50s," George noted.

But, most importantly, he said, the kart events provide an alternate summer activity for bored youngsters between ages 5 and 15.

"These kids need something to do," George said, noting parents usually accompany the young racers to help them get their karts prepared for a trip around the track.

"At least I know where my son is," Dennis said about the racing pastime he shares with 11-year-old Zack.

"He enjoys it, and it's something we can do together. We have our competitions with other people, but me and him can still work together on our karts."

While they might not describe it as a relaxing hobby, most fans would agree go-kart racing provides plenty of diversion.

That's why George started the Clawson clan on the go-kart craze. He explained he ventured into the hobby to help calm nerves frayed by the stress of making ends meet on the farm.

"You have to keep stretching things more and more," he said of the dairy operation's budget. So, "My doctor told me to stop thinking so much about the farm and find something else I could do to relax."

Nowadays, he stays mostly behind the scenes or in the trackside pit, leaving the driving up to Dennis and Zack.

George said, "Every now and then, they'll talk me into entering a mechanics' race," a novelty event which pits pit crew members against each other.

It was Dennis' growing passion for the sport which gave rise to the Clawsons' new track.

George noted the family began developing the track on a corner of the farm in about 1998 so Dennis would have a place where he could practice. They shaped clay available at the site into an oblong track with turns banked at about seven degrees.

They began inviting other friends who frequented the kart racing circuit to use the facility--squeezing in more track time in the fall, after the competitive season was over at other commercial ovals in Acme, Kittanning and DuBois.

At the urging of area drivers and fans, the Clawsons decided this year to adopt a formal race schedule and invite paying participants and spectators.

"That's how most of the tracks got started," noted Dennis.

"A lot of people start with these (karts) and then slowly move up," to more powerful race cars, Dennis said.

But, "I'm sticking with (kart racing) because of my son," he said, explaining Zack is too young to race larger vehicles.

Regulations can vary from one kart track to another. There are nine competitive classes recognized at the Blairsville track--based partly on the age of the driver and partly on the minimum combined weight of the entrant and his vehicle.

George pointed out, "A lighter weight person has an advantage over a heavier person," when speeding to the finish line.

To assure that the competition is fair, the racers must drive their karts onto a large scale to be weighed after each event.

Dennis Clawson tips the scale at 180 pounds. But his combined weight with his plastic-bodied "Lazer" model kart places him in the "senior medium" class--for competitors who are 16 years of age or older and have a combined weight with their vehicle of at least 350 pounds.

Zack climbs into a smaller "Predator" kart, racing in the "junior cage" class for those ages 9 to 14. In that division, the combined weight of kart and driver should be at least 290 pounds, which is heavier than either the junior rookie or junior stock classes.

Also, unlike the other junior classes, the cage category requires that the kart be fitted with a protective metal roll cage extending entirely up around the driver. For safety's sake, the racer also must wear a "four-point" shoulder and lap belt harness.

The youngest racers, ages 5-8, enter in the "pee wee" division, where a cage and a harness also are required.

Regardless of competitive class, George noted all race entrants must wear long sleeves and long pants, a helmet and a foam neck brace to guard against whiplash.

For each class, the field of entrants runs two 10-lap heats, the results of which will determine their line-up for the main feature race.

Most features last for either 15 laps or 20 minutes, whichever comes first, counting caution-related slow-downs and delays. For pee wee racers, the feature also is limited to 10 laps.

George explained the number of entrants in each division determines the prize payout to the top finishers in that week's feature race.

Trophies also are awarded weekly, while accumulated points will determine additional prizes and bragging rights at a season-ending banquet at a date and location to be announced this fall.

Final season points will be tallied following the Aug. 31 race, but Clawson noted additional purse races will continue into September as long as weather permits.

Compared to other racing formats, Dennis has found that go kart events are "not a real cutthroat competition. It's more family-oriented," with seasoned racers usually willing to share tips with less-experienced enthusiasts of the sport.

He noted most kart racers, when vying for the lead down the stretch, "try to pass clean, without knocking anybody off the track."

Still, accidents can occur when a cluster of karts is entering one of the track's banked turns, at speeds of between 50 and 60 mph.

Said Dennis, "When you go into the corner too fast, (the kart) wants to slide around in a circle; your back end will pass up the front end. When you lose traction, you can get tangled up" with other karts.

As in other levels of racing, a mechanical or driver mishap involving one or more karts brings out the yellow caution flag, requiring all drivers to slow down and maintain their current positions on the track.

Once the problem is sorted out, the driver charged with causing the caution episode is sent to the rear of the field. If a driver triggers three caution flags, he will be disqualified from that particular race.

At the Blairsville Kart Track, the Clawsons have chosen to follow engine standards issued by the World Karting Association (WKA).

All karts are equipped with a Briggs and Stratton 5HP engine, the same type which powers most lawn mowers. The karts run on alcohol, except for the pee wee class, which allows fueling with either gasoline or alcohol.

All competitors must have karts equipped with Burris brand tires, which are manufactured locally in Indiana and are used at a number of other area tracks.

With a standard brand and a required slick tread, Dennis explained, "You know the tires didn't beat you," as opposed to the skill and know-how of the driver and his pit crew.

But, Dennis noted, a number of other factors involving both the kart and tires should be adjusted for optimum racing results, given the conditions of a particular track on a given day.

While too much dampness will result in a race cancellation, Dennis noted a certain amount of rainfall is desirable to firm up the track's loose clay surface and to control dust.

He explained tires can be had which use different compounds, providing a range of softness or hardness for preferred traction. Changing the pressure can further fine-tune a tire's grip on the clay track.

Regarding the kart itself, Dennis noted, a driver can make fractional adjustments to a series of washers, shifting weight among the front and rear and left and right sides of the vehicle.

"If it's not set up right, you can turn the steering wheel and the kart will keep going straight," he said.

Engine sprockets also may be adjusted, to affect the rpm of the kart's motor.

"Your engine builder can tell you at what rpm the engine gets its maximum output," George explained.

"So you run for that rpm."

While about 3,000 rpm is the normal level for a Briggs and Stratton engine, Dennis said, "I turn mine to 7,000," as do many other older racers in the senior classes.

But, he added, "You don't want a little kid turning the motor that fast."

Younger competitors must install a restrictor to limit the air flow to their engines.

All that practice calculating minute adjustments to his kart has given Zack a head start in mastering math concepts at school, his father noted. "It's helped him with percentages and fractions because they mean something to him."

Educational experts may debate the difference in math skills between male and female students.

But, Dennis indicated, female kart drivers have proven they can hold their own with their male counterparts.

While there are "powder puff" races for "girlfriends and wives" who tag along with male drivers, that doesn't stop female competitors from hitting the track in the main feature race.

About 10 of the regular racers who compete at Blairsville are female. As of July 13, Jennifer Galbraith was leading in points among the junior rookie division.

Dennis noted drivers of the the opposite sex he's encountered are just as aggressive in their pursuit of victory as any male racer. "I've been beat quite a few times" by members of the female contingent, he said.

He added that a female IUP student has been a mainstay at the Hunter Hill dirt track near Mount Pleasant. "I've raced against her for six or seven years."

Looking ahead to next season, the Clawsons have installed overhead lights and are proposing to hold weekly races on Saturday evenings instead of Sunday afternoons.

There will be advantages for the racers in switching to an evening schedule, Dennis said: "It's not as hot for the people, and the track won't be as dusty."

Also, George noted, it will allow the Clawsons and their many track assistants to once more attend Sunday morning church services.

As it is now, he said, "We have to be out at 9 in the morning to get the track ready."

The Clawsons drafted Paul and Georgeann Fess, who operate Hunter Hill, to supply kart parts for participants making last minute repairs or adjustments at the track.

To fill the many crew positions at the track, they turned to some fellow kart enthusiasts from Derry--William and Bev Heckathorn and their extended family.

"Without them, we wouldn't be able to do this," George noted. "They handle the scorekeeping, watching the scales, flagging the races, signing people in and running the concession stand."

Based on the track's success this year, George is hoping to link up with the Pennsylvania Dirt Karters Association next summer.

He would like the Blairsville site to host one of a series of PDKA events which are scheduled at tracks throughout the state.

If the special event can be arranged, George noted, local kart racers will have a chance to test their mettle in a different level of competition, pitted against drivers who travel all around the state in pursuit of their sport.

Since there are no other tracks participating in the PDKA circuit in western Pennsylvania, "It will draw in some big (competitors)," George predicted. "It will mean a lot of karts."

Current Sunday races at the Blairsville track begin at 2 p.m. The gates open at 11 a.m.

Troy L Langham, 52, of Lucernemines, peacefully passed away on Tuesday, Jan. 16, 2024, at his home with family by his side, after a 17-month battle with Stage 4 glioblastoma.

Troy was born May 6, 1971, in Johnstown and raised in Bolivar. He was the son of the late Edward and Cleo (Horner) Langham, and was the middle sibling to his sisters, Jill Sherba, of Dilltown, and Beth Bollinger, of Blairsville.

Troy was the owner of Langham Timber Frames, who built well-known structures such as the former Coventry Inn of Indiana and The Roost Event Center of Mahaffey, where he was able to walk his daughter down the aisle on her wedding day.

While building the Coventry Inn, he met his wife, Rosemarie (Shock) Langham, and they had three children: Jonathan Langham, of Indiana; Garrett Langham, of Pittsburgh; and Lauren Petley, of San Antonio, Texas.

Troy enjoyed spending his time working on various projects at his workshop in Bolivar, riding his motorcycle with friends and family and making apple butter out of a copper kettle, a long-lived family tradition.

His family would like to thank everyone who has cared for or sent thoughtful prayers and messages throughout his battle. He was truly loved beyond words and will be missed so very much by so many.

Visitation is from 2 to 4 and 6 to 8 p.m. today at the Rairigh-Bence Funeral Home and Crematory of Indiana, 625 Philadelphia St. His funeral, a Blessing Service, will begin at 10 a.m. Friday at St. Bernard of Clairvaux Church, Indiana, with the Rev.
